VWP Non-Permit (NP)

Dataset Summary

The Virginia Water Protection Program (VWP) regulates activities in all surface waters which includes wetlands, streams, and open water. A permit (general permit coverage or individual permit) may be required in accordance with program regulations and State Water Control Law. Additionally, the VWP Permit Program keeps record of compliance activities such as pre-application site visits, inspections, complaints, and other compliance-related actions. These categories are tracked in DEQ's Comprehensive Environmental Data System (CEDS) as “VWP Non-Permit (NP)” records. These records may or may not be associated with VWP permit record.

Dataset Description and Purpose

The Virginia Water Protection Program (VWP) regulates activities in all surface waters which includes wetlands, streams, and open water. A permit (general permit coverage or individual permit) may be required in accordance with program regulations and State Water Control Law. Additionally, the VWP Permit Program keeps record of compliance activities such as pre-application site visits, inspections, complaints, and other compliance-related actions. These categories are tracked in DEQ's Comprehensive Environmental Data System (CEDS) as "VWP Non-Permit (NP)" records. These records may or may not be associated with VWP permit records in CEDS. The site name, Non-Permit tracking number, and regional office are among several attributes in this layer. In this dataset, the status of an NP is classified as either history or active. Historic NPs are no longer active due to closure of record by the VWP project manager. The attribute data is pulled from DEQ's Comprehensive Environmental Data System (CEDS) on a nightly basis.

Data Quality

The NP points are tracked in DEQ's Comprehensive Environmental Data System (CEDS) as “VWP Non-Permit (NP)” records. These records are manually entered into CEDS and maintained by regional VWP staff. .This layer is updated nightly based on a select subset of the CEDS data for a site and as such is not to be considered “survey accurate”
